STERLING "PROGS" LET OUT A WAIL

SAYS LEE AND DEKALB COUNTY PROGRESSIVES HAVE AGREEMENT.

TO KEEP WHITESIDE OUT

Sterling Politician Gives Interesting Interview to a Local Paper.

Sterling Gazette: A man prominent in the affairs of the prigressive party who was interviewed today regarding the article published in the Dixon Telegraph as to the claim of the Lee county progressives to the right to select the nominee for state senator next year, said that Whiteside county was not bound by any "dickers" that a portion of the party had made in Lee county and had no know ledge of any such agreement, that the attitude of Whiteside county progressives had been consistent from start to finish and without violence to party principles. The progressive movement was started here earlier than in any county in the district, and received greater support. Whiteside county progressives fought for a state ticket but on account of the peculiar existing conditions and the pro gressive claims put forth by the nom inees for congressional, legislative and county officers in the republican ticket although the progressives felt that they had the votes to elect to any if these positions, they decided to be generous and not put up nominees for any of them.

The result was that the progressive organizations in other countes in the district who went for every office of the Whiteside county leaders because they refused to become candidates themselves or to seek nominations for their friends, despite the firm belief that they had the votes to elect them. But when the votes were counted Whiteside county led all the rest and Lee county which nominated a full county ticket, got only the coroner.

At the legislative convention in Dixon it has since transpired that some of the Dixon delegates had arranged a trade with some of the DeKalb delegates where Lee supported Hunt an enormous vote for represenwhich the DeKalb delegates were to endeavor to deliver their votes next year for a Lee county man for state senator. This was a gentleman's agreement between a few men temporarily in authority and carefully kept secret from the Whiteside county leaders, who then and now stand on the cardinal tenet of the progressive party, "Let the people rule," and who refused to enter into any trade or dicker, believing that the people themselves at the primary are capable and patriotic enough to select their own candidates.

Whiteside county, which gave by far the largest vote for the progressive ticket in November of any county in the district and which gave Hunt an enormous ote for representative, has no fear that the progressive leaders in Lee and DeKalb counties when they go to the primaries will not select their candidates according to their merits instead of ratifying the gentleman's agreement made by a few men in Dixon which took out of the hands of the progressive voter the right to select the nominee for state senator next year.

TO INSTALL LOCKERS

ILLINOIS TRACTION SYSTEM TO DO AWAY WITH CHECK ROOMS IN STATIONS

Peoria Star—The Illinois Traction System has completed arrangements with the Illinois Coin Controlled Locker company of Chicago, whereby steel sanitary lockers will be placed in several of the waiting stations on the McKinley lines.

The new system will do away with the old style of checking parcels and suit cases. Instead of the patrons checking their parcels with an agent in the smaller towns, they will insert a dime in the slot in the new locker at which time it will unlock and release a key, which will be in the possession of the checker until he takes the goods from the locker.

Each station will be supplied with about a dozen of these sanitary lockers, which are extraordinarily large, whereby a traveler can check baggage and do errands of any origin and his goods will be safe when he returns. The old style in many cases has cost the road or the patrons many a dollar by loss of small parcels.

A series of lockers will be put in the following stations to inaugurate the new system and later will be put in all stations of the I. T. S.: Peoria, Lincoln, Auburn, Auburn, Virden, Gillespie, Carlinville, Staunton, Riverton ,Decatur, Gerro Gordo, Bloomington, Clinton, Maroa.

STERLING PEOPLE FEAR ICE FAMINE

ATTEMPT MADE TO PURCHASE ICE IN DIXON—COMPANY HERE IS BUSY.

Sterling has an ice famine. She depends upon manufactured ice and the supply cannot meet the demand. Several parties were in Dixon yesterday trying to get ice from the Dixon Pure Ice company, but this company will be unable to furnish Sterling with ice for the reason that many orders are on file now waiting to be filled. The Dixon Pure Ice company is doing a splendid business this summer, and could do much more if they had the ice.

WITZLEBS AUTO DAMAGED RAIL

MACHINE DEMONSTRATED ITS SUPERIORITY OVER CONCRETE AND IRON.

Emulating Mr. N. H. Jenssen, Otto Witzleb gave his new oatmobile a thorough trial Monday afternoon and he has reached the conclusion that it is fully as strong and solid as Mr. Jenssen's. Mr. Witzleb backed his machine into the heavy steel railing in the alley west of Aschenbrenner's saloon and the railing came out second best. In fact one heavy post was torn loose from the concrete foundation and the concrete was badly damaged, while the auto was not injured in any way.

GLAD HAND EXTENDED MOTORCYCLE TOURISTS

Each year the Federation of American Motorcyclists, which is the national organization devoted to the advancement of motorcycling, hold a national convention and meet. Each year riders from every part of the country gather at the convention to meet old friends and make new ones, to exchange ideas and gain information, to enjoy a pleasant holiday in congenial company and (not of least importance, though mentioned last) to elect the new officers for the coming year and outline plans for new activities. The 1913 convention is to be held in Denver July 23-26, and bids fair to outdo all previous conventions, not only on account of greater issues to be decided upon but also in the elaborateness of entertainment.

FOUR IMPROVEMENT ORDINANCES PASSED

CITY COUNCIL HELD SHORT REGULAR MEETING MONDAY EVENING.

ORDER THREE NEW ARC LAMPS

Petition of Business Men on First Street and Peoria Avenue Is Granted.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Authorized three additional arc lights, one at First street and Highland avenue; one on First street between Peoria and Highland avenues and one on Peoria avenue, between First and Second streets.

Because of the absence of Mayor Brinton, the illness of Commissioner Henry Schmidt, and Commissioner Schuler's sore toe, the city council of Dixon had hard work getting started last night, and accordingly the meeting was as short as the three members could make it. Commissioner Schuler hurt his big toe while swimming, the nail being torn from the member, and of course he wasn't in the best of humor to stand for a lengthy session.

Commissioner M. J. Gannon officiated as mayor and weilded the gavel with grace and decision. A petition, signed by 33 property owners and business men, asking for three additional arc lights on First street and Peoria avenue, was presented and the prayer was granted by the council and an order issued for the installation of the lights. The lights will be at First street and Highland avenue; one on First street between Highland and Peoria avenues, and one on Peoria avenue between First and Second streets. These blocks will not have the new ornamental lights and accordingly the councilmen agreed with the petition that the additional light was necessary.

Pass Ordinances.

The council passed the following local improvement ordinances:

149—Sewer in Sixth street, Ottawa avenue and Seventh street.

151—Sewer in East Chamberlain street.

152—Sewer in North Galena avenus.

154—Brick pavement in Commercial alley from Peoria to Highland avenues, and concrete pavement and waterway in Highland avenue from First street to Commercial alley.

The council authorized the payment of $499 to J. P. Plummer for the lot on River street which the council recently contracted for, and when the check is mailed Mr. Plammer the transfer of the property will be complete. This lot will be used to store the city's tool and engine houses and street machinery.

FREE SOAP DENIED SCHOLARS

Gotham Board of Education Withdraws Plans When Cost Is Estimated at $350,000 a Year.

New York.—The proposal to supply soap and towels to the children of the New York public schools, which received indorsement from many local societies a few weeks ago, has been cast aside by the board of education, which decided that, while such cleanliness was desirable, it was too expensive a luxury for adoption at the present time. The cost of supplying the towels and soap was estimated by a special commission at not less than $350,000 a year. Paper towels would cost $300,000 a year, it was found and the mere laundry expense for cloth towels would exceed $200,000.

SUFFERED AWFUL PAINS

For Sixteen Years. Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Moretown, Vermont.—"I was troubled with pains and irregularities for sixteen years, and was thin, weak and nervous. When I would lie down it would seem as if I was going right down out of sight into some dark hole, and the window curtains had faces that would peek out at me, and when I was out of doors it would seem as if something was going to happen. My blood was poor, my circulation was so bad I would be like a dead person at times. I had female weakness badly, my abdomen was sore and I had awful pains.

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash and they certainly did wonders for me. My troubles disappeared and I am able to work in [illegible] every day."—Mrs. W. F. SAWYER, River View Farm, Moretown, Vermont.

Another Case.

Gifford, Iowa.—"I was troubled with female weakness, also with displacement. I had very severe and steady headache, also pain in back and was very thin and tired all the time. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am cured of these troubles. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. INA MILLSLAGLE, Gifford, Iowa.

OUTDOOR SLEEPING DEVICE INTRODUCED HERE

What appears to be the most up-to-date and practical outdoor sleeping device ever seen here is being introduced this week by a Kewanee firm. The device is known as the Kewanee Outdoor Sleeping Berth and may be installed on any residence, frame, brick or stone. The berth is placed outside any window of the house and may be entered by simply raising the sash of the window.

The local representative of the Kewanee firm has letters of approval from Sterling physiicans and from physicians in all parts of the state, who recommend the Kewanee berth for both those who are sick and well. The physicians state that the notion of sleeping out of doors is a sane one and has come from the knowledge that pure food and pure air are essential to good health.

The Kewanee berth accommodates either one or two persons and furnishes an ideal means of sleeping out of doors in real comfort and at moderate expense. The berth has taken well in Sterling and doubtless many will be placed in Dixon this week.

ODD MURDER VERDICT STANDS

Why Missourian Is Ordered to Serve Life in Prison as Wife Slayer.

Jefferson City, Mo.—Unusual circumstances surrounded the case of A. J. Bass of Greene county, Missouri, farmer, who was convicted on the charge of murdering his wife and sentenced to life imprisonment, which verdict was affirmed by the supreme court here. After Bass' house burned in January, 1911, the body of his wife was found in the ruins. A coroner's jury decided that the woman met death in the fire. Later her body was exhumed and an autopsy revealed that she had been shot through the heart and several shot were extracted from her body. Bass was then arrested.

At the trial the defense contended that Mrs. Bass had been struck by shot from shotgun shells in the house, which were exploded by the fire. Neighbors who were attracted by the fire testified that they heard numerous explosions in the building while it was burning. Much expert testimony was introduced to show that loose shells when heated slowly will explode.

Judge Ferris, who prepared the opinion of the supreme court, found that the case was tried properly in the lower court, that the jury was the best judge of all the circumstances and that the verdict must stand.

THREE SPIES ARE SENTENCED

German Court Sends Men to Prison for Working in Interest of France.

Berlin.—"Spy fever" is increasing in intensity in Germany, and the government continues its energetic campaign against foreigners who attempt to learn its military or naval secrets.

The imperial supreme court at Leipzig, has just sentenced three men, Banchelin, Thiebaut and Berger, of Metz, for doing spy work for France. Banchelin was sentenced to eight years and the other two men to six years each in the penitentiary, all three to lose all civil rights and to be placed under police supervision for ten years.

Banchelin, who had charge of the carrier pigeons in the fortress of Metz, and Thiebaut, a stonecutter, had been for years in correspondence with the information bureau of the French army, and had supplied it with information about the fortifications around Metz. Berger, a secretary at the post headquarters in Metz, had secretly got possession of a number of drawings and hidden them, with the intention, as the court assumed, of finding an opportunity of selling them to France.

FISH BITES INFECT HANDS

Ex-Senator Receives Them While Disengaging a Trout From Hook In Its Mouth.

Vancouver, Wash.—Bitten by a large rainbow trout, ex-Senator E. M. Rands of this city is suffering much from an infection on his hands.

Senator Rands was fishing at Interlaken, or Four Lakes, on the North Bank road, where he is one of several incorporators of a private fish and game preserve. He succeeded in landing a large rainbow trout and when he attempted to release the hook in its mouth, the fish closed its jaws on the senator's fingers and punctured the skin.

In trying to release his fingers Mr. Rands used his right hand and was also pricked on that member. Infection set in and now Mr. Rands is going around with both hands in bandages.

Guessing at Glasses

Is more dangerous than guessing at most anything else in the world.

If relief from the errors of vision is to come through the wearing of glasses, it is all important that those glasses be adjusted according to the measurements of the most modern appliances.

Choosing glasses by simply trying them on cannot be too strongly condemned.

Absolute accuracy is essential, and absolute accuracy is what we offer you.

Real Estate at Auction

One of the Best Lee County Farms to Go Under the Hammer.

Having concluded to dispose of my farm lands, and sell them with the least possible delay, I have thrown them on the market and will take what they bring, believing that at least they will sell for a fair price, as it is close to as good a stock and grain market as any in the state, with good school and churches close by. Sale to take place at the residence, one mile north and one mile east of West Brooklyn, Lee County, Illinois, on

TUESDAY, JULY 15TH, 1913
At Two O'Clock P. M.

This farm consists of 370 acres of as good producing land as there is in Brooklyn Township, and that means as there is in Lee County. It is capable of being divided into two or three farms, but makes an ideal farm as it is. There are 300 acres under the plow, and 70 acres in a well fenced pasture. The farm is fenced with woven wire, with barbed wire on top, on all division and cross fence. There are 3800 rods of tile on this farm, and it doesn't need any more; no tile smaller than four-inch and none larger than ten-inch. There is a good well 378 feet deep, pumped with a 2-horse tread power. There is also a shallow well at the barn that never fails. The barn is 30x60 with 20-foot posts; one corn crib 24x48, with shed 16x28 that connects it with the barn; one crib 24x32; hog house 20x40, new.

The house is a full two story, 14 rooms, cellar 26x36, good well and cistern, lots of fruit and shade trees around house.

This farm is described as follows—Lot No. 26, Northwest Quarter Section 4; West Half of West Half of the Southwest Quarter of Section 4; Southeast Quarter of Northeast Quarter of Section 5; East Half of Southeast Quarter of Section 5; East Half of the Northwest Quarter of Section 8; West Half of West Half of the Northwest Quarter of Section 9; all in Brooklyn Township, Lee County, Illinois.

My tenant, who has been on the farm for ten years, and is one of the best, has a lease for the year 1914 at $2,000, and I will sell subject to his lease.

TERMS OF SALE:—Thirty-three and one-third per cent of the purchase price to be paid cash in hand day of sale, which amount I will pay interest on at 5 per cent to March 1st, 1914, when balance of purchase price is to be paid in cash, when possession will be given and deed with abstract showing clear title furnished.

If you are interested keep your eye on the date, for this farm will surely change hands at that time. Parties from a distance will be cared for; and the train that arrives at Brooklyn at 8 o'clock that morning will be met.

Mamie—No, Mamie, a humidor is not a man who writes funny things for the magazines.

F. E. B.—Your kind letter received. In reply we would say you should not get discouraged. We think of you very often and will remit in a short time. We have a rich uncle who can not hold out much longer with the ailment he has got in this kind of weather.

Angeline—You ask us how to trim your hat. That's a cinch. If it's like most of them we've seen you can trim it very effectively with a pair of good sharp shears or a pocketknife.

H. G.—You ask what is the best looking garden we've seen, and we answer without hesitancy that Mary is.

Housewife—Ic company calls suddenly and there is not enough in the house to eat, take about 15 yards of clothesline, the white variety preferred, cut it into convenient lengths, and stew it with tomatoes and cheese and even if the guests do know it is not spaghetti they will be too plite to mention it.

Patricia—To remove a wart on the thumb, lay the thumb carefully on a block of wood and, taking a sharp hatchet, strike the thumb a brisk blow above the place where the wart is. The wart will never return.

ONCE ENOUGH FOR PARROT

Bird's Tour of Discovery Forced Stoppage of Mill, but It Taught Him Wisdom.

The sixty-odd thousand spindles of the Sharp Mill at New Bedford, Mass., suddenly ceased to whirl the other day and 650 operatives sat idle at their machines. And it was all the fault of Jimmie, a parrot, the mascot of the engine room.

Jimmy is the pet not only of the engine room, but of the whole mill from Agent Robert Schofield down. It's "Hello, Jimmie" from all who enter the engine room on any errand, and Jimmie comes back with his cordial "Hello."

It was this noisy bird that shut down the mill. Whether the hum of the big rope drive became to him suddenly the murmur of south winds in tropical trees, or whether mere caprice lured him, he flew right up among the rushing ropes and rapidly revolving pulleys. The engineer saw him mount, but it was too late to stop him. And so off went the steam, production or no production, and the engine room force rushed to see what had become of Jimmie.

He had been hurled over the top of the big pulley to the floor below. They found him there, ruffled of wings, badly shaken up, and still dazed from his rough adventure, but physically uninjured. And every one gave thanks, as the mascot was borne back to his perch at the other end of the room, with the admonition never to try it again.

Jimmie, indeed, from that hour became a saddler and wiser bird. He has not tried the experience again; consequently the mill's sixty thousand spindles have revolved throughout the days without interruption. That one meeting with the whirling ropes was enough for the parrot.

Jimmie, however, condescended to descend from his perch again one day, when a cat, whose rightful residence is in the basement under the engine room, ventured within the parrot's domain. Jimmie evidently believes that in him alone is vested the right to act as mascot of the engine room. He drove the cat on the run.

Jimmie is the property of Mr. Sharp himself, and was brought by him to the mill. He is a macaw and observes the fashions of his species by having a very long tail and a strong, hooked bill. His plumage is brilliant. His original home was South America. Like other inhabitants of that part of the world, he is a revolutionist. His invasion of the region of belts and pulleys stopped the mill. The intrusion of the cat caused her ignoble retreat.

He is as polished in his manners as a Spaniard, and as flighty in his temper as a Venezuelan insurrectionist. He is, in fine, of the south, polite, hot tempered, sporting gorgeous raiment, and fearless of death.

BANK FAILURE TO BE PROBED?

U. S. Prosecutions May Result From Suspension of Pittsburgh Institution.

HAS $30,000,000 DEPOSITS

First-Second National Closed by Government and Receivers Are Appointed for $73,000,000 Water-Works Company.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 8.—As a result of the suspension of the First-Second National bank of Pittsburgh, one of the largest institutions in the country, of which W. S. Kuhn is president, the government may start criminal prosecution. The bank had more than $30,000,000 in deposits.

The circumstances on which the probable prosecutions are based is the discrepancy of nearly $2,000,000 between the sworn report to the comptroller of the currency as to the bank's condition on June 4 and what should have been a true copy of this report published in the Pittsburgh newspapers.

The report to the comptroller showed assets and liabilities aggregating $39,997,347.10 each, while as given to the Pittsburgh newspapers for publication the report placed these totals at $38,103,886.39, the $1,893,460.71 difference representing rediscounts or borrowed money. Officials declare that this was illegal.

Other Failures Follow.

The closing of the First-Second bank was followed by action in rapid series against various other interests with which the Kuhns are identified. During the day there was a run on the Pittsburgh Bank for Savings, a large institution, of which J. S. Kuhn is president. Then came the closing of the First National bank of McKeesport, an adjacent city, which is closely allied to the First-Second of Pittsburgh. Soon afterwards a receiver was appointed for the banking house of J. S. & W. S. Kuhn, incorporated.

Greatest of all disasters in this tremendous financial crash, however, was the receivership for the American Waterworks and Guarantee company, the largest concern of its kind in the country, of which J. S. Kuhn is president. This corporation controls waterworks plants in about eighty cities and towns in the United States, and the capital stock of the various controlled companies approximates $73,000,000.

The one consoling feature of the situation was a reassuring statement sent out from Washington by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, in which he declared that the general banking condition in Pitsburgh, as well as in the entire country, was strong and sound, and that he expected no further trouble as a result of the failure.

Investigation to Result.

The secretary will, it is said, make a sweeping investigation of the causes of the failure of the big bank and probably will call upon the department of justice to assist the treasury in unearthing any possible irregularities in connection with the collapse.

The closing of the First-Second National bank was ordered by Deputy Comptroller of the Currency T. P. Kane after every effort had been made to meet the government requirements as to legal reserve.

The Kuhn banking house has extensive interests in irrigation projects throughout the west, and mines and street traction systems throughout western Pennsylvania, besides being a dominant factor in the American Waterworks and Guarantee company.

When it was learned that the bank would have to suspend business steps were taken to protect the American Waterworks and Guarantee company and the Kuhn banking house, and application was made in the federal court for receivers for both institutions.

POULTRY CULTURE

Article VII.

Specialization .. ..

The poultry plant of today, devoted exclusively to fowls and the production of poultry products is one of the best examples of specialized intensive agriculture. Business men, successful in other lines of industry, have noticed the continual and steadily increasing demand for eggs, dressed poultry and fancy fowls. They have noted the excellent prices paid for the best poultry products, have considered the question of location, buildings, live stock, labor, transportation and all other necessary investments and expenses. They have thought it possible to make a special business of poultry keeping and in numerous instances have proved the reasonableness of their calculations.

Specialization tends to concentration of thought, effort and means upon the producing of one thing or a certain few things. The result is better quality and larger quantities of the special product and better prices with an increased demand for same.

Essentials

The principles which underlie success in any business apply in poultry keeping. The business man when he runs a poultry plant brings to it business methods, systematic habits of thinking and sufficient capital, three factors which are most necessary to success in intensive poltry culture.

Methodical vim applied to poultry keeping results in the pushing of the business, instead of being pushed by it. There are regular times for duties, the work goes on systematically things are kept in order and necessary records and accounts are attended to properly.

Systematic thinking is a personal habit of the proprietor of the poultryman. He sets his mind on the working out of the problems, plans and possibilities of the business and does not stop thinking until the solution is found and success is an assured fact.

Main Obect

The main object of the poultryman or proprietor of the special business poultry plant is to win financial gain as in any other commercial undertaking. Let him first become so intensely practical that he conducts his business of producer on strict business principles and both profit and pleasure may be guaranteed to the right man, who, with brains to plan well, capital to invest wisely and tenacity of purpose to compel success, will proceed systematically to work out the solution of his special problems. Accounts must be kept and studied.

Failures

Failures of special poultry planss have occurred. The poultryman, should, if possible, investigate these cases and ascertain the causes of ill success. The reason may perhaps, be found in a bad choice of location, lack of capital, careless investments or the improper proportion of fixed and floating capital. Mistakes are made in the placing of the buildings as well as in planning and constructing them. There may have been poor business sense or lack of proper direction and push on the part of the proprietor. Possibly he may have employed an "adventurer" for a poultryman.—H. A. McKeene, Secretary, Illinois Farmers Institute, Springfield, Illinois.

SHOWS HIMSELF AS VICTIM

New York Lawyer Claims He Was Deceived Into Giving Help to "Lamar" Plan—Blames Ledyard and Operator.

Washington, July 8.—The senate lobby investigating committee's examination of Edward Lauterbach wound up in a verbal quarrel, in which Senators Reed of Missouri and Nelson of Minnesota were the disputants.

Admitting his intimate association with "Lamar," the wolf of Wall street, and admitting also the truth of much of the damaging testimony given against him on the witness stand last week by Lewis Cass Ledyard and others of high standing in the financial world and legal profession, Mr. Lauterbach confessed to Senator Stone and to the members of the lobby committee that he had been duped by his friend—"Lamar."

Says He Represented Stone.

He said it was true that he had posed before Mr. Ledyard as speaking for Senator Stone and Speaker Clark with regard to a "general political adjustment of affairs" in which the great corporations of the country were vitally interested. He laid all the blame on "Lamar."

"Lamar," he said, professing to enjoy close relations with all the powers at Washington, had dictated to him the program of legislative action and a combination of political and financial interests which the party in control of the government had presented to him with Senator Stone as the intermediary.

Possessing every confidence in "Lamar" and all that he had told him, Mr. Lauterbach declared that he had carried the proposition to Mr. Ledyard. Mr. Lauterbach further testified to the truth, in substance, of all the statements made with reference to his representations of authority and power to control matters between the government and the steel trust.

"Lamar" Furnished Data.

He established, through his own connection, added proof of the community of interest between Wall street operators and busybodies in the committee-rooms of congress acting in the name of the so-called Anti-trust league.

Lauterbach said that he got his information from "Lamar" and that "Lamar" got it from Henry Martin, secretary of the Anti-trust league, that President Taft did not want the congressional investigation of the steel trust and that before the resolution starting the Stanley committee on its work was introduced, he (Lauterbach) had peddled the tip among the big men of Wall street for what it was worth.

Never Talked to Senators.

Declaring the statements he made to Mr. Ledyard with reference to Speaker Clark and Senator Stone were based solely and entirely upon conversations he had with Mr. "Lamar," averring that he had never talked to Senator Stone or Speaker Clark. Mr. Lauterbach was led by questioning on the part of Senator Reed to one of his most dramatic climaxes.

At Mr. Reed's suggession that the representation made by his friend "Lamar" constituted a falsehood made out of whole cloth, and that therefore he was misled into misusing the information furnished by "Lamar," Mr. Lauterbach said:

"Then I was absolutely misled. There never was a victim such as I was when I went to Mr. Ledyard's house on that day. Never. I knew nothing whatever of all these telephone conversations. Mr. Ledyard knew about them from beginning to end.

"I knew nothing of the fact that Mr. 'Lamar' had really given way the Palmer situation, as the testimony developed, by telling Mr. Ledyard to call up Palmer on the succeeding Sunday at his house, when this whole thing would have been developed, and I was permitted by Mr. 'Lamar' on the one hand and Mr. Ledyard on the other to go there as a messenger, assuming to represent a scheme of peace and orderly arrangement—political arrangement—and I went there in good faith, assuming that what Mr. 'Lamar' had told me was perfectly correct and absolutely authorized, assuming that Mr. Ledyard did not know anything to the contrary, which he did; and there I stood like a scapegoat and a vicarious sacrifice between both."

"And then 'Lamar,' in his own way and with his own detective methods, and with what he will explain to you—and I ask you to have him explain it to you; I partially understand it—had these conversations with Mr. Ledyard (of which I knew nothing however), advised me of supposed telephone communications with Speaker Clark; and I, impelled by this talk, with the desire of resuscitation, with no greedy desire, with no money desire, with the desire only to be of service in carrying out this program, which in many respects appeared to me to be inoperative, and in many respects to be very good, and thinking 'Here I am going to help in a great public function, and am going to be all right with Morgan & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and to stand as I did before.'

"One benefit that came to me from what 'Lamar' did in his detective way—in his own way—was that I found out the man who causelessly so far as I know, had years ago begun to undermine me with people with whom I had been in the closest friendship and to that extent I was benefited."

"Do you refer to Mr. Ledyard as 'that man?'" asked Senator Reed.

"It is self-confessed," replied Mr. Lauterbach.

From developments it is even possible that criminal action may be taken against persons upon whom the rays of the investigating light recently have fallen. Senators in private conference have been studying the situation presented with a view of ascertaining whether a man impersonating a member of congress cannot be criminally prosecuted under the laws relative to contempt of the senate and house of representatives.

Stone Questions Lauterbach.

Senator Stone's part in the examination of Lauterbach came at the night session. During Senator Reed's cross-examination Mr. Stone arose behind the committee table.

While Senator Reed was propounding a long question reviewing Lauterbach's testimony he thought "Lamar" tried to prompt the witness.

"Stop prompting the witness," he warned.

"I am not," responded Lamar.

"Don't say a word or we will have the sergeant-at-arms place you where you won't say a word," said the senator.

"I am not to be browbeaten in this fashion," interrupted Lauterbach. "Mr. 'Lamar' did not speak to me."

A moment later Senator Reed and Senator Nelson got into a sharp wrangle about the treatment of the witness.

Mr. Lauterbach told the committee "Lamar" had excused his course "fairly satisfactorily" to him. He said "Lamar" had told him he acted as he did so that Ledyard and the other conspirators against Lauterbach and himself might be publicly exposed.

The committee concluded Lauterbach's examination at 11:50 o'clock.

AN AUTO IN EGYPT.

(Lines replying to an invitation to joy-ride in Southern Illinois.)

Jessie often rides afar
In her rapid choo-choo car.
Oft from hill to hill she jumps,
Heeding not the jolts and bumps.
Forward lies the jiggling scene,
Rearward smells burnt gasoline.
Onward like a streak of light,
Scaring everything in sight.
Frightened hens fly like a lark,
Dogs don't even stop to bark;
Terrorized the children feel,
Pigs, run over, lose their squeal;
Passing farmers with a "bing,,"
They all swear: 'Gol darn that thing'
Driving thus o'er hill, through dell,
Jessie rushes on, pell mell.
Jessie, Jessie, stop you must,
Raising such a cloud of dust;
Or you will—heed what I say,
Break your little neck some day.
Or your gasoline will barst,
With you flying upward first,
And you'll lose your Easter hat—
Jessie, Jessie, think of that!
When the evening sun has croaked,
And the grass with dew is soaked,
Then your light go flashing by,
Like a comet in the syy.
Though you are a Lulu-bird,
Flying thus is quite absurd.
Some sad day, all in a rage,
Cops will put you in a cage.
Then no more will shine your eyes,
Like twin diamonds in the skies.
Then you'll show your temper right,
Scolding soffing through the night.
This will happen, well I know,
Jessie, Jessie dear, go slow,
Or you'll end your swift career—
No one nigh to drop a tear.
I shall never ride with you,
I'll be doggoned if I do.

CUBAN POLICE CHIEF WOUNDED

General Riva Probably Fatally Wounded by Governor Asbert.

RAID IS CAUSE OF QUARREL

Cabinet Called by President Menocal Decides to Convene Supreme Court to Try Assailants of Officers.

Havana, July 8.—Gen. Armando Riva, chief of police of Havana, was shot and probably mortally wounded by Governor Asbert of Havana province and others who had been angered by the recent action of the chief in closing up a political and gambling club. Riva's coachman was shot in both legs.

General Riva in his ante-mortem statement said he was shot by Gen. Ernesto Asbert, governor of Havana province, and Representative Arias. Senator Vidal Morales also was involved in the fighting, which was the outcome of a raid made by General Riva Saturday night on the Asbert club, when a large number of the members were caught gambling, arrested and sentenced to heavy fines.

Governor Asbert complained to President Menocal, who, it is understood, sustained the action of the police.

Quarrel Over Arrest.

General Riva, while driving with his two young sons, stopped his carriage in front of the Asbert club and caused the arrest of the doorkeeper for illegally carrying a revolver. Asbert, Morales and Arias arrived in an automobile about the same time and a dispute arose. Insults were exchanged and all alighted, advancing in a threatening manner.

Two witnesses say Riva was shot while he was attempting to shelter his sons in the carriage. He had no chance, according to these witnesses, to return the fire of his assailants.

General Riva's coachman was shot three times and two bystanders received bullets. The Prado was crowded with promenaders, including many women and children.

Flee to President.

Seeing their chief fall, several policemen ran to the scene and opened fire, but Governor Asbert and his companions re-entered their car and hastened to the country residence at Mariano of President Menocal, to whom they made a statement, the purport of which, however, has not been given out. Then the governor and his friends returned to Havana and surrendered to a magistrate, by whom they were provisionally detained.

President Menocal summoned a meeting of the cabinet, at which it was decided to convene immediately the supreme court, in whose charge the accused have been placed. This course was necessary because the assailants of General Riva, on account of their official station, are not amenable to the ordinary courts.

The superior officers of the army and rurales were summoned to the palace and received from President Menocal personally directions to insure against any disturbance of order in any part of the island.

SYLVIA BATTLES POLICE

Daughter of Mrs. Pankhurst Taken at Suffragette Meeting.

Makes Violent Address and Says She Wants to Be in Riot, and Then Officers Act.

London, July 8.—Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, the second daughter of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who was summoned to appear in court because of her connection with the recent attempted raid on the residences of the cabinet ministers in Downing street, and who failed to appear, was arrested at Bromley during a suffragette meeting, despite her resistance.

The young woman apepared on the platform in the middle of the meeting. Her hair was untidy and her hat was awry. She had a straw traveling bag in her hand.

As soon as she mounted the platform, Sylvia began talking rapidly and wildly. She said among other things:

"We are out for riots. I have had no hand in a real riot yet, but I mean to have."

Miss Pankhurst tried to escape when the police arrived at the hall to arrest her. A man wrapped his overcoat about her and she left the hall amid much excitement. The audience fled in great haste.

The police followed and arrested Mis Pankhurst in the street. She struggled violently, and a big crowd gathered.

The police finally carried her to a taxicab, in which she was taken to Bow street police court.

KAISER'S SHAFT IN TURK CITY

Monument at Constantinople Is Made of Fine Mosaic, and Is Surrounded by Enclosure to Prevent Theft.

Constantinople—The kaiser's monument in this city was for several years surrounded by a strong enclosure to discount the possibility of any persons or persons with burglarious intent stealing the fine mosaics with which the fountain is richly embellished. Lately, however, the enclosure has been removed, an innovation which is much welcomed by the inhabitants of the city, as the monument is one of the best fountains in Stamboul, yielding the so-called pure "sultan's water." Several stones of the mosaic work are still wanting, and Turkey has recently asked the German government to make these good.

Kaiser's Monument at Constantinople.

CITY BESIEGED MANY TIMES

Constantinople Has Been Under Turkish Rule for Five Centuries.

Constantinople. — The history of Constantinople was said years ago to be chiefly a record of sieges. Put on the map by Constantine the Great in 330, it withstood its first siege a century later. It was threatened by the Huns in 450, by the Huns and Slavs in the next century, and by the Persians and Avars in 626. Thrice the Arabs assailed it. Four times the Russians were driven back from its walls, and it fell before the Turks only after the second expedition made in the fifteenth century. In most of its many sieges it drove back the enemy. It was entered on only three occasions.

Since it has been under Turkish control the city has been threatened only four times—once by the combined Russian and English fleets in 1770; a second time by a British squadron in 1807; the third time by the Russian army of liberation in 1877, when a hasty peace stopped the czar's advance, and the fourth time by the Bulgarian forces today.

For eleven hundred years Constantinople was one of the important cities of Christendom. For less than five centuries it has been under the crescent. It would be an historic event if the Bulgarians, as they have predicted, could sing a Te Deum in the great mosque of St. Sophia, which once was a Christian church.

HOW BILLY MADE GOOD

BY Z. M. INGRAM.

"No, Billy," said Molly, with a despondent shake of her brown head, as they paused at the crowded street crossing, I have interred my very last hope. Had I won in the contest, as I was sure I would, mother could have left town for the summer and boarded with the old couple living in her childhood homestead. We would have rented out our little house here and I'd have boarded. But as it is, it's the din and heat of the town, and our dull, stuffy little house for mother."

"Molly, I wish I could help you. You know I—"

"When you don't even help yourself! Billy, I wish you wouldn't waste breath talking like that. Your aunt tells mother and me how your Uncle William keeps you up, and how you are fast drifting into a reckless young spendthrift."

"Why, Molly!" Gleason's brown eyes showed surprise and resentment. "I draw a really decent salary every month, and no one stays closer to his job than I."

"It isn't what you make, Billy," said Molly, "but what you save that determines your ability."

She paused to snatch a small child from beneath a heavy cab. After restoring the baby to its mother she continued:

"Ah, Billy! Billy! you simply won't be a man. Don't you know that to succeed in any undertaking one must first make good? Mother couldn't trust me to you, boy."

Gleason caught a faint note of tender regret in her voice. He stopped instantly and grasped her arm. "Say, Molly," he said eagerly, "will you promise to marry me if I make good—what you shall call good?"

Molly looked up and down the dull street and sighed. Then she promised.

Two weeks passed, and one day Molly called Gleason over the telephone and demanded his immediate presence at her house. She greeted him in a state of ecstacy. "Billy, I just couldn't wait longer to tell you," she bubbled, thrusting a letter into his hand. "There, read that!"

San Antonio, Tex., May 4.
Miss Molly A. Meylan,
Dallas, Texas.
My Dear Miss Meylan:

Two weeks ago while my wife and I were passing through Dallas, you heroically saved our child from death. We feel that we owe you something beside the deep thankfulness in our hearts, and after learning your name, and that you are self-supporting, we have deposited for you in the First National bank, Dallas, Tex., the sum of ($500) five hundred dollars, which we beg you to accept as a small remuneration for your noble deed. You need not reply, as we are traveling and would probably not receive your letter.

Most humble yours,
CLARA and HAROLD McKIM.

"Whew-w!" whistled Gleason, "but I call that some luck! Wish I'd saved that kid!

A month later Gleason went up to the room and escorted Molly home. At the gate she stopped, with a puzzled look at the house.

"Billy," she said, facing him, "what does this mean?"

"Never mind," Gleason laughed, leading the way up the walk; "I will explain later."

At the door a woman in white cap and apron met them and directed them into the little parlor.

"Come and see how you like things; then I'll explain," said Gleason, still leading the way.

They went through the few rooms, so wonderfully changed with large open windows, occasionally a new article of furniture, bright, fresh walls and floors, and out upon the wide, cool new porches.

"It won't be quite so stuffy now, Molly, do you think? Sit here in the swing and I'll tell you about it." He took his billbook out of his pocket and, selecting a paper, gave it to her.

It was a bank deposit slip and showed a credit of $500 in favor of Molly A. Meylan, by W. R. Gleason.

"I've got one just like it," said Molly.

"Are you sure? Look again."

"Oh, I see! Mine doesn't have 'By W. R. Gleason' on it. What is it on there for, Billy?"

"Molly, there weren't any McKims. You saved one of the butcher's kids here in town. I hate to tell you, dear."

Molly's eyes lighted with understanding. "And it was you who deposited the money for me, Billy?"

"Yes, and had a friend in San Antonio write you that letter. You see, I wanted to help you, Molly, and you wouldn't let me, so I had to resort to stratagem."

"But where did you get the money?"

"I have been carefully saving it up for the past three years in the hope of your marrying me. I find it pays a fellow to economize in the beginning of his life."

"But your aunt said—" began Molly.

"Oh, don't worry about what Uncle Bill's wife said. Your old professor being her brother had a great deal to do with her tales of me. But tell me, Molly, how do you like the house?"

Her blue eyes were gleaming tenderly. "Billy, I've been cruel to you! Won't you forgive me?"

"Have I—have I made good, Molly?"

"Made good, you great big man! It's what I call best!" Then she looked at him shyly. "The only way I can think to thank you is to ask you to share all my splendid happiness, Billy. I promised, and I always make my words good. Oh, won't mother be proud of you!"

UNCLE DICK'S METHOD

By JOHN BRANDON.

Uncle Dick agreed to take care of the baby. Uncle Dick and the baby were good friends.

"I don't see why so much fuss is made about taking care of a child," said Uncle Dick to himself when the mother and aunts had departed. But after a half hour of play with his small charge Uncle Dick was exhausted and wanted to read.

"I want to go out and play in the yard," said the child.

That suited Uncle Dick.

"I want my hat," she said.

"All right. What sort of looking hat is it?"

Uncle Dick did not know the Sunday hat from the every day hat and was afraid to take a chance.

The child decided to write a letter. "Does d-e-e-r spell dear, Uncle Dick?"

"Yes."

"How do you spell Annie, Uncle Dick?"

"A-n-n-i-e."

"'Dear Annie.'"

'Is that the kind of dear you mean? That's d-e-a-r. I told you wrong."

"'Dear Annie, we were—' How do you spell were, w-a-r-e?"

"Not this time, baby. W-e-r-e this time."

"'We were at the park.' How do you spell park?"

"P-a-r-k."

"Is it that way all the time?"

"Yes. I don't know of any exceptions. You see, I don't know much about spelling. Spell it any old way. I'm going to read."

"Uncle Dick—Uncle Dick!"

"Yes? What do you want this time?"

"What did mother say she would bring me?"

"I don't know."

"Yes, you heard her. She said she was going to bring me something."

"Well, I'm sorry, but I've forgotten. You see, I'm not like your mother. I can't act as memorandum book and dictionary, and all that. I'm only plain, ordinary Uncle Dick. I don't know much more than you do."

"Oh, Uncle Dick—Uncle Dick! I'm bloodthirsty!"

"That so? You don't look it."

"I am! My tooth's loose and it's bleeding and I can taste it. It's fine! I must be bloodthirsty."

"You are descended from pirates. That's what makes you like that. Now, if you'll keep quiet for half an hour so I can read I will take you to the ice cream soda place and get you some ice cream soda. But you'll have to be quiet for half an hour to get the soda."

When the mother returned all was quiet. She came in with a smile. "Where's the child?" she asked.

"Oh, she's—er—around here somewhere," said Uncle Dick.

The mother went out. Suddenly there were sounds of the baby angry and abused and sounds of the mother equally angry and abused.

"You know you are not allowed in my bureau drawers! And the top drawer especially! And just look at my gloves? And my watch! And grandmother's medallion! And my necklace! What haven't you been into!"

Uncle Dick stepped in to remonstrate. "Now, look here, Emma! All the time you were gone the child has been perfectly happy! Not a sound out of her. But as soon as you get back there is all this fuss!"

"Perfectly happy! No doubt! And no wonder! Look at what she has been allowed to play with! Laces and ribbons and precious old jewelry and everything else. She knew better than that!"

Uncle Dick retired. Soon he was joined by the child. She was in disgrace, and evidently felt it keenly. Uncle Dick took her in his arms and seated her upon his knee.

This seemed not quite proper to the child.

"I've been bad, haven't I, Uncle Dick?"

"Yes, I think so."

"Do you love bad girls?"

"Yes," whispered Uncle Dick.

"And you pet 'em, too?"

"You bet I do!"

When the mother came into the room the child was still in Uncle Dick's lap. His arms were tight around her and their heads were close together.

"You oughtn't to pet me except when I'm good," the child was saying.

"Well, you see, I don't have to handle that end of it, either," returned Uncle Dick. "Your mother looks after that along with the dictionary and memorandum stunts. I am only your Uncle Dick, and you have to give me something easy."

The mother sat down beside them. "Are you two rapscallions talking about me?" she demanded.

"Yes," answered Uncle Dick, "we are, respectfully and in tones of awe."

Supplanting Mr. Howells.

Prof. Brander Matthews, at a dinner in New York, said of literary criticism:

"A good deal of it, too, is biased. A good deal of it is like Mr. Walton's.

"Mr. Walton's daughter, a college girl, wrote, at the age of 18, a novel which her father brought out for her at his own expense.

"During the Christmas holidays Mr. Walton gave a party in his daughter's honor, and at this party the young girl read from an improvised platform chapters out of her book.

"Her fond old father was carried away by the reading. So tremendously indeed did his admiration for his daughter's talent enkindle him that, as the girl read on, the old man could be heard muttering over and over:

"Howells be hanged! Howells be hanged!"

Harnessing the Sun.

Old Sol himself is harnessed to do our world's work. Heat is collected by pressing water through a glass covered heater exposed to the sun's rays. The heated water is stored in a well insulated tank and drawn off to circulate around a sulphur dioxide boiler, then, after giving up its heat, was again passed through the heater. It was calculated that in latitude 34 degrees a square foot of water surface would make up about 23,000 thermal units in a June day and about 1,600 in a December day.

Using two heaters, sections exposing 1,000 square feet to the sun, the heat collected was made to run a twenty horse-power sulphur dioxide engine, and at times developed about fifteen horse-power with a boiler pressure of 245 pounds per square inch. Reviewing the results, Mr. Willsie has found the cost per horse-power at the solar power plant to be about $150, or more than four times the cost of a steam power plant. He makes due allowance for this difference in first investment and concludes that in a favorable region, like California, sun power can compete in cost with steam power.

HEIRS SETTLE BACK TAXES

Bavarian Government Collects on Property Which Was Undervalued by Owner.

Munich.—The Bavarian government has discovered one way of recovering taxes where a man has under appraised his property and income, and that is, after his death, to collect from the heirs. The heirs of the late Herr von Clomm, formerly president of the diet, or parliament, have had to pay over $115,000 back taxes upon the estate.

FINE DRAMA SEASON

ATTRACTIONS AT PLUNKVILLE REVIEWED BY EDITOR.

Opening With Greater Barnstormers' Minstrels, the List Included Prof. Svengali, "East Lynne," "Jesse James" and Others.

"The dramatic season just ended," said the Winesap County Weekly Vindicator, "was the most successful in the history of Plunkville, both from an artistic and a financial point of view.

"Early in October the season was ushered in with the Greater Barnstormers' Minstrels, with 15 performers in high top slickems and beautiful pink dusters, who played the most ravishing circus marches in the courthouse yard. At the evening performance many of the latest melodies were rendered, including 'After the Ball,' 'Hot Time Tonight,' and 'Love Muh and the World Is Mine;' also many first-class jokes which have never been seen in the almanacs in this section. Our versatile and talented barber, band leader, baseball pitcher, orchestra conductor, and society favorite, Mr. Nick Duggins, secured an engagement with the minstrels to play second baritone and double up in the evening as 'Mr. Rastus Johnsing Brown.'

"In November a hypnotist and entertainer called 'Prof. X. Svengali,' occupied the boards at the opera house. Professor Svengali put Sam Tucker, the tinner, into a trance, and made him stand on his head in the corner and sing the 'Doxology.' After the performance Sam missed a five-dollar bill, but he allowed the fun was worth the money.

"In December we witnessed that soulful and lachrymose drama, 'East Lynne,' put on with great eclat and a whole lot of terrific success. Deacon Shucks, who hasn't cried since his wife ran away with the leader of the Bass Center choir, broke into profuse tears; and as the large concourse of Plunkvillians shuffled down the steps that lead from over S. Quigley's well-known commission, confectionery and farm implements emporium, there was not a dry eye on the stairs.

"About the middle of January the Plunkville Thespian and Terpsichorean Troupe rendered 'Kate, the Convict's daughter,' for the benefit of the South Sea head hunters. Miss Sadie Sebree, our talented milliner, who took the immortal role of Kate Kipper, made a pronounced hit and admits that, when it comes to finished trapdoor and red-light situations, she has Mme. Bernhardt backed off the boards.

"The spring attractions included 'Ten Nights in a Barroom,' 'Jesse James,' a Shakespearean elocutionist who put everybody to sleep faster than Parson Buckner does, and a man without arms who played the bass viol with his toes.

"For the next season Manager Tobe Scruggles will maintain the same high standard. He has already engaged 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' a fiddling quartet, a moving-picture show, a patent-medicine entertainment and an ossified man. During the summer many notable improvements will be made. A new tin cornice will be erected and the interior will be repainted in exquisite tints of flamingo red, paris green, Helen pink and chrome yellow, with many striking fresco decorations representing Venus, General Grant, Cleopatra, the Muses and Little Bopeep. For next season the same competent staff will serve the public. Capt. Artemus Jefferson, the saddler, will continue to preside at the box office in return for the privilege of seeing the shows free. Nathan Thomas, the grocer, will light up and make fires and 'Piggy' Partington, the widow's son, will act as usher and carry the red banner with the golden letters in the parades for the same splendid privileges.

SEA ROUTE TO SIBERIA

Company Is Formed in England to Establish It—First Ship Encounters Floes.

London.—A company has just been formed here to establish a new sea route between England and the Russian ports on the White sea, with further calls at more remote Siberian station. The company is called the Anglo-Norwegian company, and is the result of some experiments made by Captain Webster, of the barkentine Nimrod, the vessel which conveyed Sir Ernest Shackleton to the antarctic.

The first steamer got through to the Yenisei with a miscellaneous cargo, including materials for the erection of wireless stations on the island of Vaigats, as well as at Cape Maare-Saale Ugorski-Shar, and Archangel, toward the cost of which the Russian government has granted $50,000. Although the vessel encountered dense masses of drift ice, she is now on the return passage to London, and it is believed that when radio-communication is established it will be possible to facilitate trade, as navigators will then be kept well informed about the conditions obtaining in these northern waters.

A Narrow Escape.

Shamokin, Pa.—Wally Buronki, a mule skinner at the Natalie colliery, had a narrow escape when one mule and ten wagons were swallowed by a cave-in caused by underground mine workings. He slid over the head of the mule he was riding and clutching the traces of the anmial in front, was pulled out of the chasm as he was being sucked under the ground.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA'S CHARITY

British Home and Hospital at Streatham Now Inadequate, Owing to Her Majesty's Efforts.

Queen Alexandra of England has a pet charity in the British Home and Hospital for Incurables at Streatham. Founded in 1861, the institution soon became totally inadequate to care for the enormous number of cases which came under its province.

In 1863, however, according to the Bystander, Queen Alexandra, then princes of Wales, became a liberal supporter. Through her donations and the influence of her patronage funds poured into the hospital until it gained a sound financial basis. For many years it was situated in Clapham road, but in 1894 the buildings became so crowded that new quarters were sought at Streatham. The present building cost in the neighborhood of £27,000, which was subscribed by the public.

The beneficiaries in the home are all persons of what the British term the middle classes—persons who shrink from charity and who prefer death to a life in a paupers' home. They are known as guests of the institution, and their number includes university graduates, army and navy officers, members of the medical and legal professions.

A new wing is being added to the hospital, which is to be called the Queen Alexandra wing, by permission of the queen.

11,000 SERVIANS DIE

BATTLE RESULTS IN TIMOK DIVISION BEING ANNIHILATED.

Ivanhoff Reported to Have Repulsed King Constantine's Force of 80,000.

Vienna, July 8.—Eleven thousand officers and men of the Servian Timok division were killed during the battle with the Bulgarians, according to the Sofia correspondents of the Reichspost. The division consisted of 15,000 men, who were surrounded by a Bulgarian army, which had outflanked them. Only 4,000 of the Servians survived and these were taken prisoners.

According to other newspaper reports a Bulgarian column of 14,000 men has succeeded in reaching the Servian town of Vranya and is threatening the line of retreat of the Servian army. The Bulgarians presumably were pushed forward from Egri Palanka.

Dispatches received at Vienna from Belgrade, however, show how impossible it is to gather any idea of the real situation from the official statements disseminated from Belgrade and Sofia.

One dispatch, direct from Belgrade, announces fresh victories for the Servian troops, who are said to have captured the Bulgarian position at Kitki, on Osigowa plain, as well as Rujan heights.

Another message from Belgrade, by way of Semlin, where the correspondents evade the censor, says private advices regarding the disaster to the Servian Timok division and the critical position of the Morava division have become known in Belgrade and have caused the deepest depression.

Mobilization of the Roumanian army will be completed by Thursday or Friday, according to dispatches from Bucharest. The Roumanian troops are expected to cross the Danube into Bulgaria immediately, and as a result of this step it is assumed that Bulgaria will be compelled either to agree to the Roumanian demands and permit Roumania to occupy the territory it desires or to engage in war.

A dispatch asserts that General Ivanoff, by an unexpeteced attack, scattered the Greek army of 80,000 commanded by King Constantine and occupied Nigrita and other points on the Greek line.

Constantinople, July 8.—The sublime porte has sent a telegraphic message to the Bulgarian premier, Dr. Daneff, requesting the evacuation by the Bulgarians of the territory comprised within the Enos-Midia line as soon as possible. The necessary preparations for the advance of the Ottoman troops are proceeding.

CAVE-INS ADD ZEST TO GOLF

Extra Hazards Break Into Games on Unique Links at Scranton, Pa.

Scranton, Pa.—While playing golf on the links of the Scranton Country club Rev. J. H. Odell and Valentine Bliss discovered that the course passed the unique character, that in addition to the regular hazards, new ones are appearing daily. Doctor Odell was preparing for a long drive and approached his ball with a well delivered stroke. The ball agcended and after a long trajectory descended into a mine cave thirty feet in depth. It was a hazard that could not be approached and the game ended.

A bell mine cave in the Cathedral cemetery, one hundred feet from the Hoban Memorial chapel, wrecked five graves. Four rough boxes were uptilted and one casket broken in half, exposing the corpse. The cave was thirty feet in diameter and about the same depth.

London, July 8.—Little Peter, son of Captain Scott, the polar explorer, is a wealthier boy than perhaps he is capable of realizing, for he is to have $17,500 for himself. This perhaps is the most interesting of the many announcements in the report published of the Mansion house committee's Captain Scott fund, which deals with the large sum of $375,000.
